DID OFFICIALS OF THE San Roque Dam follow their operations manual in regulating its water level amid the incessant rain and flooding triggered by Tropical Storm "Pepeng"?

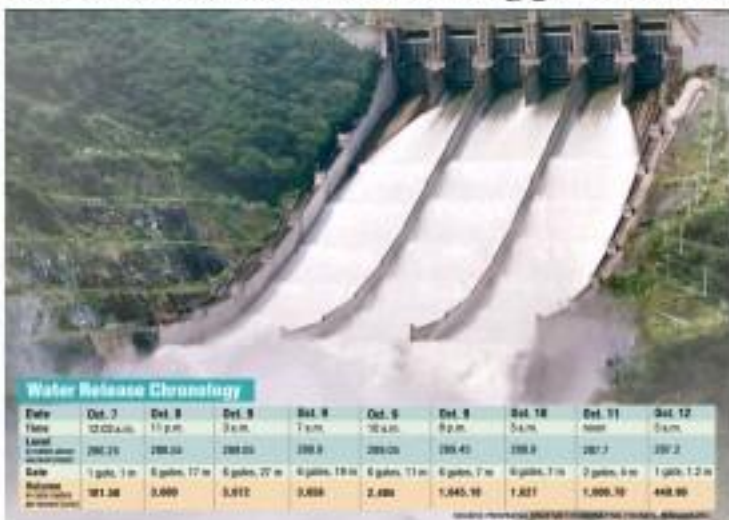

The officials say they did, but based on the extent of the flooding that hit Pangasinana and the magnitude of the devastation, a Dagupan-based environmentalist doesn't think so.

Nicasio Malabon, president of the NGO Pangasinan League for Land and Aquatic Resources, said dam officials should have started releasing water at 500 cubic meters per second (cms) when the dam's level had reached 280 meters above sea level (msl) as indicated in their flood-control rule.

The dam has a maximum elevation of 200 msl.

DAVAO CITY—FACED WITH the economic task of having to pump out floodwaters and rebuild roads and bridges, President Macapagal-Arroyo has formed a body to do a post-mortem on Tropical Storms "Ondoy" and "Pepeng" and seek and to rehabilitate the economy. The Special National Public-Private Sector Reconstruction Commission will also undertake a rebuild-it action plan for damaged infrastructures, Ma Arroyo said.

"This is going to be chaired by a business leader and Marcy V. Pangilinan (MVP) has agreed to chair this commission," she said at a meeting of the National Disaster Coordinating Council and Cabinet at the Enrigo West

Central School.

The commission will be chaired by Finance Secretary Margarito Torres and Co-Chairman Ricardo Carandang Vela, the President said.

His body was one of the first recovered from the rubble on Oct. 9. But it was found headless, causing initial doubts among his kin as to its identity.

No one could remember the clothes he last wore, and there was neither wallet nor identifi-

Ignoring peril puts RP economy at risk – UNDP

MANILA, (PNA)—The Philippines will immediately lose the economic gains it has made if it ignores climate preparedness and management, the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) said yesterday.

"Climate change is going to be a huge issue as well as the frequency of disasters in the Philippines," said Alice Childer, director of UNDP Asia and the Pacific, as he expressed concerns about the devastation that "Crabby" and "Topping" brought to the country.

"More resilience need to be built" in the Philippines, he said.

Childer said the country "has made very good economic progress" despite the global economic crisis.

But with the recent calamities, he stressed that "many people have just escaped poverty and one disaster could throw them back. This is where I think we should be keen."

The UNDP official addressed a four-day conference on democracy organized by the UNDP and the Filipino government which gathered some 200 delegates from all over Asia.

Meanwhile, the United Nations Secretary-General pledged to reverse the politically dominant existence of China and India, has vowed some sort of democracy starting with its first national parliamentary election which was completed in March 2008. King Apsara Singh Bhagabhai called Bhutan's first Constitution in July 2008.

Though it is still taking baby steps toward democracy, Bhutan can serve as a "role model" even for other democracies like the Philippines, especially as how the small nation is preserving nature. Edwin C. Sison, Jr.

A disaster waiting to happen

By Delmar Castro
 La Trinidad, Benguet

AREALLY GONE ON THE road near the community of Little Kilangay in La Trinidad, Benguet, was the sign that read "Geohazard Area."

Enders Rosales, chief of the Benguet People's Movement (BMP), said that the sign was put up last year by the provincial government and he had to go to the town people to get it removed. "They said they were going to remove it," he said.

However, the sign was ignored, and now the heavy rainfall caused a huge portion of a mountain overlooking the village, unleashing a mudslide that swept through Little Kilangay like a tidal wave.

At Benguet, a newspaper, says the slide was a sudden. "Last for today, when I finished school, I was in the house," he said.

Patricia Lagana, who lived nearby, says the mudslide came like a high wave. "I was in the house, and I was in the house," she said.

The school was destroyed—more than 70 people died, all people homeless, and around 25 houses destroyed.

Thiving community

What was once a thriving community has been turned into a barren wasteland, and the school was destroyed. The school was destroyed.

But Little Kilangay, a long-time Benguet resident, says the mudslide was not unexpected. "This school is a school, it was just covered with mud," he said.

Located on a mountain slope, Little Kilangay was a community of vegetable traders,

Family loses P3M to robbers

By DJ Tap

ARMED MEN RAIDED A BUSINESSWOMAN'S house in San Juan City on Monday, tied up the members of her household and took P3 million worth of valuables, including several guns belonging to her late husband, the police said.

The daring heist, which took only 10 minutes, happened at about 6:15 a.m. on Monday when eight men forced their way into the house of Glorinda Gerardo, 62, a resident at 221 F Bendeo corner Panatitan Street.

Chief Supt. Benjamin Marcelo, director of the Eastern Police District, said Gerardo's daughter, Nicholas Lee, 31, was about to leave the house with two companions, one of whom was carrying a gun, when their path was blocked by eight men.

The robbers directed Lee's companions to lie down and looked all of them back inside the house.

They then tied up the victims, including Lee's 5-year-old son, stay-in cook Henry Villacueva and three other house helpers.

Loot included several guns

Investigators said the armed men took several pieces of jewelry, electronic gadgets like cell phones and laptop computers, as well as several handguns of different calibers that belonged to Gerardo's late husband, retired Col. Gerardo Manzano.

At that time, Gerardo was in Manila. She learned about the robbery when she came home, her brother Manny told her brother.

Senior Supt. Prospero Lipana, San Juan police chief, said his men were looking into leads to find the robbers.

"We have some possibilities we're tracking down who might be connected to the crime based on what the victims told the investigators," Marcelo said.

Lipana said the multimillion home was the first in the neighborhood and even in the city to be burglarized.

Patient files complaint vs doctor

THE NATIONAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (NBI) will continue its questioning a nurse of the Philippine General Hospital (PGH) after she allegedly left a piece of surgical gauze inside a patient who gave birth at the medical facility.

Investigators of the FBI-Malabar Against Women and Children Division said they were trying to determine whether Dr. Maribel Reyes, an obstetrician and gynecologist, should be held liable for negligence based on a complaint filed by her patient, Janet Dizon.

Dizon said that a month after she gave birth at PGH, she remained another doctor because there was pain in her private part which refused to go away.

Americans win Nobel economics

Ostrom is 1st woman to win prize

STOCKHOLM—A US ACADEMIC who proved that decentralization can trump state control and corporations became the first woman to win the Nobel Prize in economics on Monday, sharing it with an expert on how companies make decisions whose work could influence post-crisis regulations.

Elinor Ostrom of Indiana University did not conventional wisdom with a study that showed that non-entrenched property rights in community fish stocks or woodland areas—more often than not were better than those awarded to state agencies.

University of California, Berkeley economist Oliver Williamson, the other winner, looked at how incentives within companies, government and other organizations affects decisions, adding human dimensions such as social norms to a field often thought of in terms of a hypothetical perfect market.

The two will share the 940th Swedish Academy of Sciences award of 13 million Swedish crowns (US $1.6 million) prize.

Business Ostrom, the previously accepted view that common property was poorly managed and should be either regulated centrally or privatized.

"What we have found that businesses sometimes do not have the correct information while citizens and users of resources do, we hope it helps encourage a sense of security and proves," Ostrom said a new substance the brightest.

OSTROM

AP/WIDE WORLD

After a week of Nobel drama that ended with the gap-inducing selection of 100-year-old French Ostrom for the prize prize, the economics category risked being an anti-drama.

But the choice of a woman for a prize in a field dominated by men added a first twist to this year's awards, sharing again the Nobel committee's penchant for surprising winners.

"There are many many people who have struggled mightily and to be chosen for this prize is a great honor and I'm still a little bit in shock," Ostrom, a professor in political science, told the news conference.

Studies of how organizations function may sound dry but the examples that pepper Ostrom's work are anything but. A central role in prize graduates in Mongolia, China and Russia.

How to write an effective fundraising appeal in these flooded times

There's no 'donor fatigue.' But make a donor feel part of a solution, not an open check book.

By John L. Sisson

IN TEACHING GRAVE WRITING, there's invariably the question: "Isn't this a little fatigued?" I always answer, there isn't. Teachers, be it individuals or institutional leaders, don't get tired giving. Giving is not like a sprinter you can turn on or off. Compassion and the more profoundly human term "parentship" aren't fatigued. If they should stop, it's for a reason of necessity.

Dances develop other interests. It may be reproductive rights today and gay rights tomorrow, depending on the resolution of its focus. It may be about limiting funding because of the crime.

And many more just don't understand what you are saying and, therefore, are prevailed to give donations.

There are 10 short tips that are essential in writing a succinct, engaging and persuasive fundraising appeal.

3. Include your job here on outline first, in this order:

What's the problem?
I have nothing to show.

What makes you say that?

How much will it cost?

2. Parasitica. Stenobothrus

can't appeal solely on heart-cugging phrases. How many children exactly are going to be helped? What specific medicine is needed? Where is the problem caused? How can we do it here and what to know exactly

3. Highlight our presence you will help. Reading about the plight of hundreds of thousands of flood victims makes the donor's eyes glaze. But if you focus on just AFTER HELPING ONE GROUP OF disaster victims after another get back on their feet, Filipinos and their foreign friends have yet to succumb to donor fatigue. On the contrary, their generosity seems to grow in response to the magnitude of a disaster.

Last Wednesday's Festival of Events Manila Polo Club, an annual fundraiser of Manila Jockey Club (MJC) and Philippine Institute for Social Progress (PISP), raised P1.2 million in an auction.

Products of the same auction will benefit six local elementary schools in Fairfax and Manassas as part of the group's "Project Encourages," while proceeds of the art auction will go to re-
